Mending a wounded life can mean healing from substance abuse, physical or emotional abuse or coping with grief. It often means dealing with feelings of unworthiness, anger or emptiness. Page by page, Brenda Grey takes her reader from struggle and sorrow to peace and fulfilment:

We are eternally connected to the spiritual, healing energy of love. At times, the pain we have experienced prevents us from accepting this connection, because it is hard to believe in anything when we are suffering. We have gone through, but we can change our present.
